VINEYARD UPDATE

"We're coming off a very productive 2024 growing season in which we harvested over 200 Tons of Estate fruit. We fertilized the vineyard post-harvest, the vines have lost their leaves, and the canes have lignified. In essence, the vines are dormant. It's the end of January and we're working on pruning the vineyards. We're about half way finished with the ranch and should complete pruning by the end of February. By the end of March to early April we should have bud-break and then the growing season begins. This is also the time of year that we can catch up on odds and ends around the property. We're all looking forward to another great vintage for 2025.

With the 2024 vintage concluded, my honest assessment is that the wines are some of the best we've produced. They still have some aging to do, but I'm really excited about the quality. We'll be bottling most of the 2024 white wines in April and the 2023 red wines in July. The 2023 Reds are showing well now and by the time we bottle them they will have been in barrel for over 18 months."

-- Justin Mund, Winemaker

VINEYARD FUN FACTS

We're bringing back the Sonata this year which is an off-dry Falanghina.

For the first time we've made a small lot of Malvasia Bianca for a dry, still wine.

We will bottle another Anniversary wine from the 2023 Vintage.

We harvested our first crop of Nero d' Avola in 2024. It's a very robust, well-structured wine that we will bottle in 2026.
